Whatever Life Brings, Look For Opportunity

Scott and Joan Bolzan's true love for each other has kept them solid and optimistic though tragedies and triumph on their journey of life together. They have persevered and learned a higher sense of purpose through the loss of their first daughter, a drug addiction of their only son, Joan's reoccurring depression and Scott's career defeats and challenges as an NFL player, his becoming a pilot and owner/entrepreneur of a successful private aviation company, and most recently his devastating brain injury that erased the memories of his 46-year life.

Scott's memoir, co-written with his wife Joan, My Life, Deleted, comes out in fall 2011 from HarperOne. Sought after keynote speakers, the Bolzan's share their remarkable story and how their business and personal life lessons apply to a variety of groups, including business organizations, athletic associations, educational institutions, and brain injury associations. Some of their speaking clients include Business Clubs of America, Tucson Medical Center, Sprint, CBS Outdoor, Udall Law Firm, the University of Phoenix, and The Ken Blanchard Executive MBA. They can be booked together or separately. The Bolzan's custom-tailored talks are candid, heartfelt, filled with humor, and leave audiences inspired and understanding that "Whatever Life Brings, Look For Opportunity."

"I listened to Scott and Joan recount their journey and challenges with passion, a sense of humor, but also with great insight into their lives and future. I came away with an abiding sense of purpose and a renewed dedication to my own life and family to live in the moment and take nothing for granted.... Therefore, one of the messages that we learn listening to Joan and Scott is that even after all has been taken away, if you have built a life based on sound moral values, you can and will pull through because your foundation is rock solid.... Their story is an inspiration for love, courage and hope, to which we should all aspire." — Thom Cope J.D SPHR, Udall Law
